

Reincarnation – How Spirituality Gets It Wrong

Reality is One totally integrated material and energetic vibrating whole. Everything – including complex material entities like humans and planets – exist entirely within this whole.

As individual humans, from the time we are conceived to the time we die and transition into dust, we never have been and never will be separate.

Vibration is change, and Everything is changing all the time within the whole.

At human scale, our material and energetic “parts” at all levels of complexity are constantly being interchanged in the whole as the whole vibrates.

This is true for our sloughed skin cells as well as for our bodies as a whole. If we lose a limb, it is part of this constant interchange.

Death is an artificial point in this ongoing interchange process. There never was a beginning; and there never will be an end. There is only continuous flow.

We have no reason to consider this ongoing interchange process at any level in terms of the standard version of reincarnation – which requires separation.

We have always been part of everything with our every material particle and energetic field participating in the ongoing interchange vibration process within the whole. Separation is impossible.

If we view interchange itself as reincarnation, we are being reincarnated and contributing to the reincarnation of other “entities” all the time.

We exist as complex entities within the totally integrated vibrating whole, and through use of our developed intuitive faculties, we have access to any other “part” of “ourselves” at any time within this whole.

Knowing ourselves as another “expression” of ourselves in the whole is always an option – whether this “expression” is a tree, flower, another human being, or the cosmos. We can even connect to the degree that we “manifest” this other expression. This is our intuitive faculty within our consciousness at work accessing the subjective experience of reality.

Unfortunately, within some otherwise sophisticated spirituality traditions, some of the more extreme results of our intuitive faculty at work get misinterpreted as full blown reincarnation.

This contention is groundless, unnecessary, and even counter productive.

The spiritual goal is enlightenment, not to live multiple lives to “earn” the right to “dwell” there. Enlightenment is not a terminus for the “soul” – a heaven.
